

Dear Sir or Madam,

I would like to make an appeal regarding the issue of Low Power FM (LPFM) service and regional broadcast using FM translator service. In particular I want to be an advocate on behalf of K-LOVE Radio. My family and I listen to this station locally on 104.3 FM in Cincinnati, Ohio. Since we have discovered K LOVE, this broadcast station has become an integral part of our lives.

Not only does K LOVE provide a positive listening environment for my family, it also keeps us abreast of local events. A local calendar of events is provided. The intangible benefits of having the positive types of programs available to our community are immeasurable.

K LOVE provides a virtual worry-free-zone for families when listening to the airwaves. This is an extremely important issue for our community. K LOVE is a nonprofit that relies on contributions to provide its service. The national nature of the service allows contributions to be used in the most economical manner possible.

Local communities are in effect supporting their own local stations. As the guardian of the public airwaves, the FCC should consider the void that would be left by giving priority to LPFM over local FM translator services. I know the presence of K LOVE's signal has enriched our community.

Thank you for your attention.

Respectfully,

Jonathan T. Lampkin, M.D.
